L. 1914, Chapter 49 (§ 7, p. 79) - S5
Introduced January 13 by Mr. Egan.

COPY NO. 1

This section read:

No assignment of or order for wages earned or to be earned in the future to secure a loan or advancement of three hundred (300) dollars or less shall be valid against the employer of the person making such assignment or order unless such assignment or order is accepted in writing by said employer.

This provision requiring consent of employer was deleted in:

L. 1932, Chapter 62 (§ 17, p. 105) - S235
Introduced February 24 by Mr. Read.
Amended during passage.
No statement on bill.

New Jersey was the second state to enact legislation regulating the small loan business. The pioneer state in this field was Massachusetts.

Chapter 727 of Acts of Massachusetts of 1911 required the consent of the employer in any assignment of wages. This particular provision of the Massachusetts law was deleted in 1916, for reasons outlined in "The history and purpose of the wage assignment statutes with a suggestion for an amendment." 5 Massachusetts Law Quarterly 479, 1920. (See especially p. 486).

I am enclosing a copy of this article on the possibility that the analysis for the change in Massachusetts (the "model" for New Jersey's small loan laws) may provide clues for the change in New Jersey.
