Release: MON., JUNE 2, 1986

Governor Thomas H. Kean today signed legislation to remedy pension problems for certain employees of the New Jersey Commission on Science and Technology.

S-1030, sponsored by Senator Francis J. McManimon, D-Mercer, would allow a person who was employed with the Department of Higher Education or the original Commission on Science and Technology and who is currently employed in the New Jersey Commission on Science and Technology to continue membership in the Alternate Benefit Program instead of enrolling with the Public Employees Retirement System.

This legislation protects those employees from suffering financially because of their switch in employment.

The legislation is effective immediately and applies retroactively to April 8, 1985.
