BEN BOROWSKY

Governor Brendan Byrne signed two bills into law today while visiting the Warren County Farmers Fair in Harmony. Both bills were sponsored by Senator Wayne Dumont, Jr., (R-Passaic, Sussex and Warren).

S-1524--authorizes the use of facsimile signatures in the execution of bonds of Type II school districts. It also permits the use of facsimile signatures in authenticating coupons attached to such bonds.

The Governor pointed out that this new law "will be a great convenience to school board presidents, who usually have to take a day off for bond signings."

Municipalities and counties already use facsimile signatures for bond authorization purposes. Type I school districts use municipal bonds rather than school bonds to raise funds.

"Ample safeguards are provided," Governor Byrne said, "as the facsimile signature of the board president must be attested by the actual signature of the board secretary or assistant secretary."

S-1614--permits certain Federal Flood Control Act monies which are received and distributed by counties to be used for public school and roads in certain municipalities.

This bill clarifies that funds distributed to counties under the Federal Flood Control Act may be used for public schools and roads in municipalities in which such lands are located.

During 1976, four New Jersey counties received a total of $85,000 under this program and $76,000 of this total went to Sussex County.
